MYA THOROGOOD

Mya Thorogood joins us today from Binbrook, Ontario. She began her career as a dancer at the age of three, competing until she was seventeen. During these formative years, she not only trained at her home studio but also attended workshops at Nuvo, Jump, CDX, and Elite Danceworx. She further honed her skills by travelling to California, where she trained at Millennium Dance Complex and Mather Dance Company. Mya earned finalist awards at both Nuvo and Jump, which inspired her to take her dance career to the next level by using it as a gateway into the film industry. Since transitioning to film, Mya has booked a diverse range of roles in both dance and acting. Her credits include being featured in the music video for "Make My Head Go," several national television commercials for M&M Food Market, and print advertisements such as a Spinrite Yarn campaign. Additionally, it is worth noting that Mya regularly demonstrated for Acrobatic Arts, working at intensives and filming demonstration videos for their downloadable app. She also had the opportunity to dance as a backup for the Mini Pop Kids in her earlier years and assisted her mother with organizing her own dance competition.

After graduating from high school, Mya chose to pursue business studies at Toronto Metropolitan University while continuing to follow her passion for film. She expanded her acting knowledge by training for six months at Milne Acting Studio in Toronto, engaging with industry professionals, and taking classes in improv to further develop her craft. Currently, Mya is represented by both a modeling and acting agency. She recently completed five months of filming for a new television series. Grateful for the many opportunities she has had, Mya remains eager to continue expanding her skills and resume, excited for the promising opportunities the future holds.
